I want to provide just, dignified & safe supports and services

CHECKING MY OWN PRACTICE

Did I follow their lead?

Did I explore and listen to their context?

Did I represent the violence they experience accurately?

Follow My Lead speaks from the voices of people with lived experience of Domestic and Family Violence (DFV) who need the professionals and their social networks to be more prepared to respond effectively. More prepared to respond in ways that uphold dignity and build on safety.

Who is this resource for?
Any person who may at some point be listening to and responding to their friends, family members, colleagues, peers or to the people who use their service, who are experiencing DFV.

The resource may also have benefits for people who are:
- thinking about their own relationships, safety and their experience of DFV
- seeking support about their own lived (or live) experience of DFV
- working as a service responder to people experiencing DFV.

All designs are hosted on Insight Exchange www.insightexchange.net
Violence is most accurately understood when it is examined in context.

Context Life-World / Social Material Conditions

“I am a unique person with unique experiences. I have my own sense of what is important right now and in the long term. I identify with and belong to many communities and networks. These are the contexts in which I understand and respond to Domestic and Family Violence. My race, gender, sexuality, class, immigration status, ability, age etc. influences the circumstances of my life and the discrimination and oppression I may experience. When I face multiple forms of discrimination, the person abusing me is empowered to use greater levels of violence and I am isolated from formal and informal support systems.”

Social Setting / Situation Interaction

“Where I am (at home, in school, online, on my mobile, at work, in the community) changes the risks I face and the responses I can expect to receive. I anticipate and respond to threats and risks wherever I go, with whoever I meet and whatever I do. The importance I place on the past, the present, the future, and possibly the afterlife, can influence how I see things and make decisions.”

Adversity Offending Actions

“The violence I experience is unique. I may be threatened, intimidated or coerced into doing things against my will. The person committing the abuse may isolate me from those I love and manipulate others against me, and undermine my relationships including my parenting. They may commit physical, verbal, emotional or sexualised abuse, and they may threaten or abuse my children, friends or family, pets, property, and things that are important to me as a means to control me. They may steal, control or undermine my finances, or my ability to work or be financially independent. They may try to use my beliefs and spirituality to control and isolate me. The person abusing me may change the nature of their behaviour rapidly, without warning, significantly changing the realities I face.”

Victim Responses Resistance

“I resist and respond to the violence, discrimination and oppression I experience. I do this in visible and invisible ways that might not seem obvious or directly related to what is going on, but this resistance and response to violence is important to me, and is part of upholding my dignity. The person abusing me knows that I do not like the violence and anticipates that I will resist. Consequently, I must hide my resistance, sometimes completely, and find a safe place in the privacy of my mind. I am experienced in anticipating the patterns and tactics that the person abusing me uses against me and the people I care about. I can see how they adjust their tactics to suppress my resistance and responses to their abuse.”

Social Responses / Social Network Institutional Responses

“I may receive both positive and negative social responses from others. I am always aware of the actual and possible responses of others, from professionals to my friends and family members. These responses inform how, or if, I reach out to others.”

Responses to Social Responses

“The quality of the social responses I have received influences ‘if’ and ‘how’ I engage with social networks and services. If you try to make decisions for me and tell me what to do, I might feel more unsafe than before I shared with you. I am always aware of the actual and possible responses of others, from professionals to my friends and family members. These responses inform how, or if, I reach out to others.”
How well have I understood, described and written about the person’s lived experience of violence and abuse?

Contest the blaming and pathologising of victims by obtaining accounts of victims’ prudent, determined, and creative resistance. While language is a tool of domination, it is no less a tool of resistance.

Expose violence by using language that conveys its unilateral nature and, wherever possible, by including accounts of victims’ responses.

Blame and Pathologise

Conceal Violence

Reveal Violence

Clarify Responsibilities

Obscure Responsibilities

Reveal Personal-Situational Logic

Conceal Responses and Resistance

Reveal Responses and Resistance

Elucidate and honour victims’ responses and resistance by enquiring about victims’ responses to specific acts of violence and oppression, and elucidating the situational logic by which some responses become intelligible as forms of resistance.

Clarify offenders’ responsibility by avoiding language that portrays offenders as out-of-control and by highlighting the deliberate nature of violent acts, particularly offenders’ strategic efforts to suppress victims’ resistance.
