

Insight Initiative

Understanding the role of finances within experiences of domestic and family violence (DFV)

We have commenced a project to better understand the role of finances within experiences of domestic and family violence (DFV). We are seeking to interview people with lived experience of financial abuse to share their experiences in a safe, ethical and de-identified way.

“Thanks.. just doing that interview and reading it now has really changed my perception again. I'm not sure where or how, but I feel different and in a good, moving-on way.”

Participant 2019

This project is being undertaken by Sightlines Associate, Rebecca Glenn

It is part of the broader Insight Exchange initiative to strengthen social responses to Domestic and Family Violence (DFV).

This project is focused on improving our understanding of, and responses to, financial abuse in the intimate partner context. The interviews we conduct will seek to uncover the detail and complexity of the context in which the financial abuse occurred, the deliberate nature of the abuse and the ways in which social, service and system responses were helpful, unhelpful or harmful.

Learn more through the links below or circulate this update into your networks:

- Find out more about the project here
- Read the Participant Information Pack which includes more detail.

If you have further questions, please do reach out directly to rebecca.glenn@dvnsdsm.org.au